COURSE CODE: PRAC101   Section: BSIT - 4106

COURSE TITLE: OJT / PRACTICUM 1

TERM: 1st Semester, SY 2025-2026

PROFESSOR: MR. EMERSON GELERA

NAME OF STUDENT: GIRAY, JOHN MARVIC D.

OJT NARRATIVE REPORT

A. TOPIC: FUNDAMENTALS OF CYBERSECURITY
B. SPEAKER: MR. MARC TONIDO
C. DURATION: 2:30 PM – 3:30 PM

D. SCREENSHOT OF DUTY

E. REFLECTION

The session on "Fundamentals of Cybersecurity" with Mr. Marc Tonido opened my eyes to the matter of cybersecurity in a different perspective. I came to the conclusion that it is not only about protecting hardware or networks but it is mainly about winning over human beings through their trust, empathy, and digital identity. The talk resulted in my realizing how our everyday online activities like posting on social networks, or transferring files can make us vulnerable unless we take precautions.

I found it quite captivating when Mr. Tonido mentioned the concept of ethical hacking. This made it clear to me that hacking is not always the evil act it is thought to be; in fact, it can be used to the benefit of mankind when it is performed with a certain degree of responsibility. The very fact that white-hat hackers are tirelessly working to make security systems impregnable has really made me value the effort that is put into making our virtual world safe.

Consequently, this session made me more conscious and strict in controlling my technology use. It also stirred in me a desire to know more about cybersecurity and to adopt good online practices solely for the purpose of safety, but to also play a part in creating a more secure digital world that is safer for all users.